

redreba 5 days ago

Rapture equals salvation. Yes, that's what the pre-tribbers believe because all they care about is their flesh. They won't lay down their life for Christ, they follow a get out of tribulation free Christ that doesn't exist. Salvation is salvation, and pre-tribbers cheapen it beyond recognition, because they just want an easy flesh life. And they refuse to read scripture, which is so easily clear and totally goes against their delusions.

Bible is EXTREMELY clear that the GREAT tribulation is only 42 months (Rev. 13:5, Daniel 12:11-12), and that Jesus gets his ONE and ONLY BRIDE at his second coming, Rosh Hashanah. All eyes will see him and this. 2 Thessalonians 2, Matthew 24:29-31, Luke 17-32 onward (the taken away are not pre-trib rapture lol, they are killed by God's wrath, you WANT to be left behind), all of Revelation which are different views of the same events, with back story epilogue, Daniel 12. Revelation alone is the whole story of God, period.

Philadelphia needs to pray to be KEPT (that word in the Greek means protected/guarded, NOT removed from someplace) from the hours of temptation; only Philly, the other churches don't have a prayer to escape tribulation. God's character has always been to protect his bride/own, while he pours out his wrath. Noah, Lot, Isrealite in Egypt, Isrealites fleeing Egypt, etc. God does NOT change his character, nor is he a liar. He said he will get his bride at the end when he comes. Period. Matthew 24: 29-31

1 like

< Hide 1 reply

Reply Pin Delete Mute

gritter3390 5 days ago

I think many people fail to see and understand the difference between tribulation in this world and THE Tribulation. There is no comparison. THE Tribulation is for the redemption of Israel first and punishment upon the UNBELIEVING world second. Where does a true believer today fit into those two categories?

1 like

< Hide 1 reply

Reply Delete Mute